Tech Data Appoints Datanamics' Chris Conlee to TechSelect Vendor Relations Committee

(Henderson, Nev.) – Terrence McGowan, president of Henderson-based information technology firm Datanamics, Inc., recently announced that Chris Conlee, manager – business development, has been appointed to Tech Data's TechSelect Vendor Relations Committee.

TechSelect is a national community of solution providers with proven leadership in the IT industry. The TechSelect Vendor Relations Committee is comprised of 16 professionals from across the country whose mission is to lead the community as they support the technology solutions needs of small and medium businesses nationwide, and to foster strategic relations that help leading value-added resellers maximize sales and profitability.

Because of Conlee's commitment to the TechSelect Committee, Datanamics was awarded first place for being the most active member. Conlee is responsible for identifying and cultivating new business partnerships for Datanamics, a full-service voice and data network design, survey, installation, support and education firm.

A dynamic, results-oriented technology professional, Conlee possesses extensive experience and comprehensive knowledge of enterprise-wide business finance solutions and complex telecommunications and network infrastructure platforms. Conlee has a proven track record of delivering world-class network strategies that help clients improve profitability, increase employee productivity, enhance customer satisfaction and mitigate risks.

Also involved in the Las Vegas community, Conlee is a member of the Southern Nevada Medical Industry Coalition and a founding member of United Way of Southern Nevada's Young Philanthropists Society. In Business Las Vegas named Conlee one of its 2009 '40 Under 40' honorees and he has been featured in In Business' Annual Business Profiles for three consecutive years.
